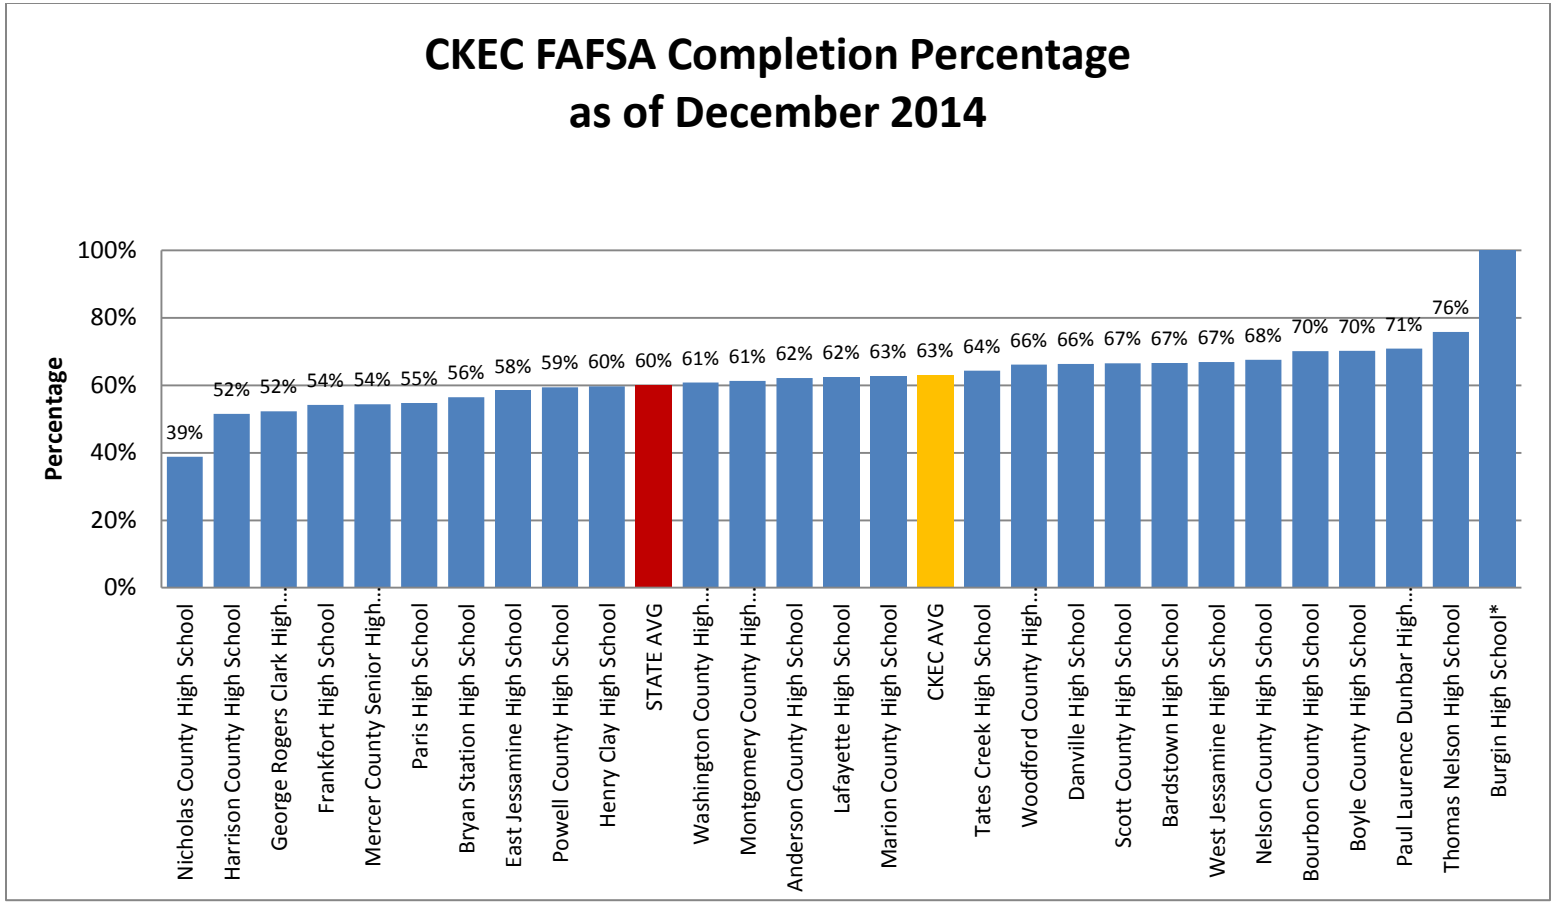
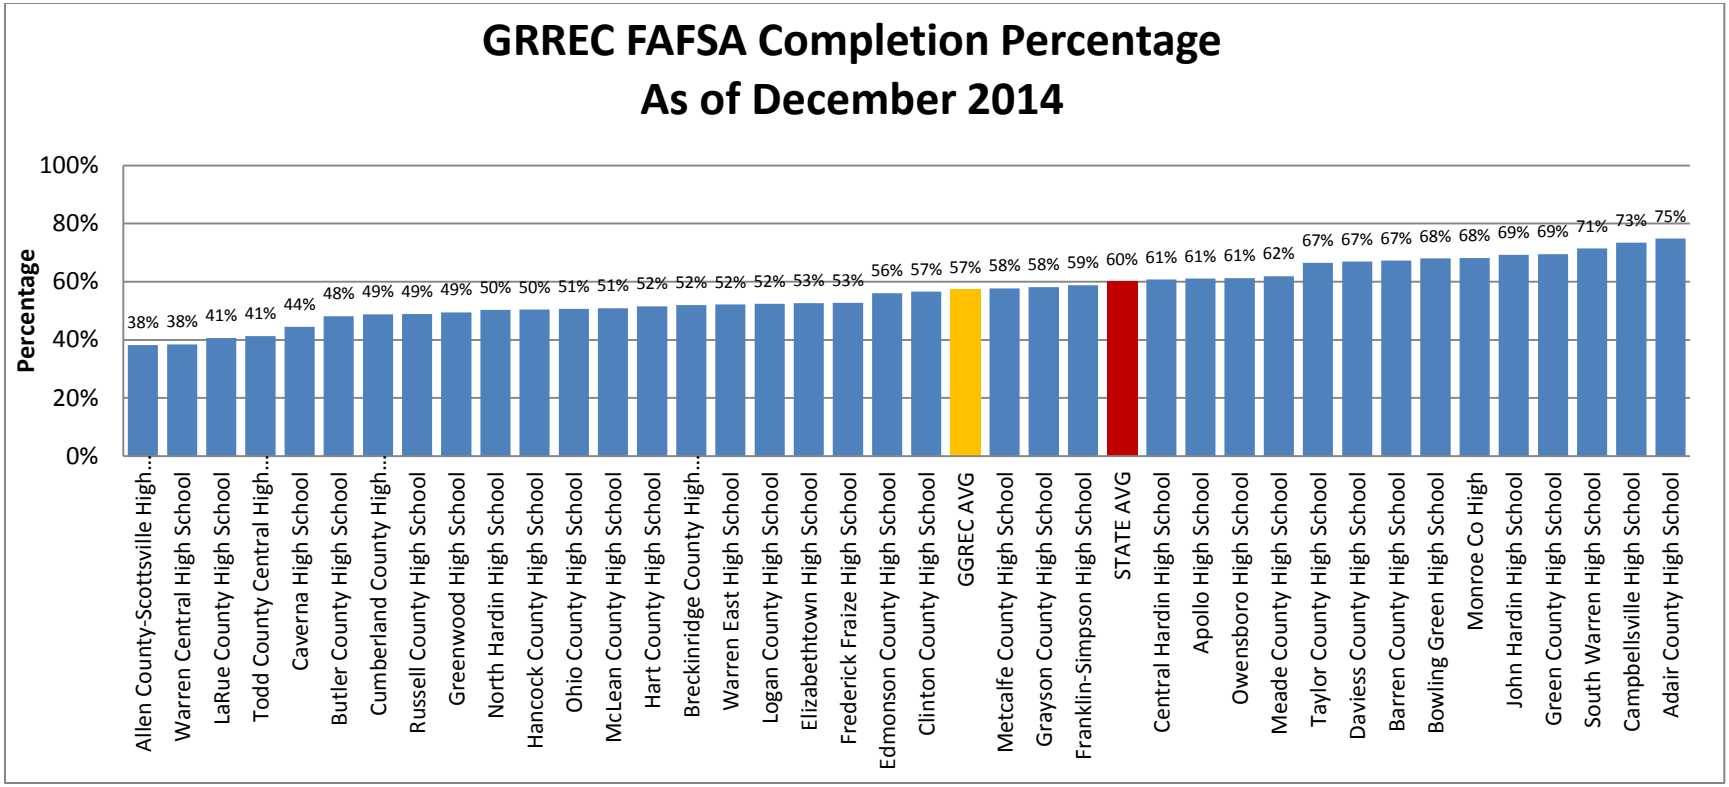
FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



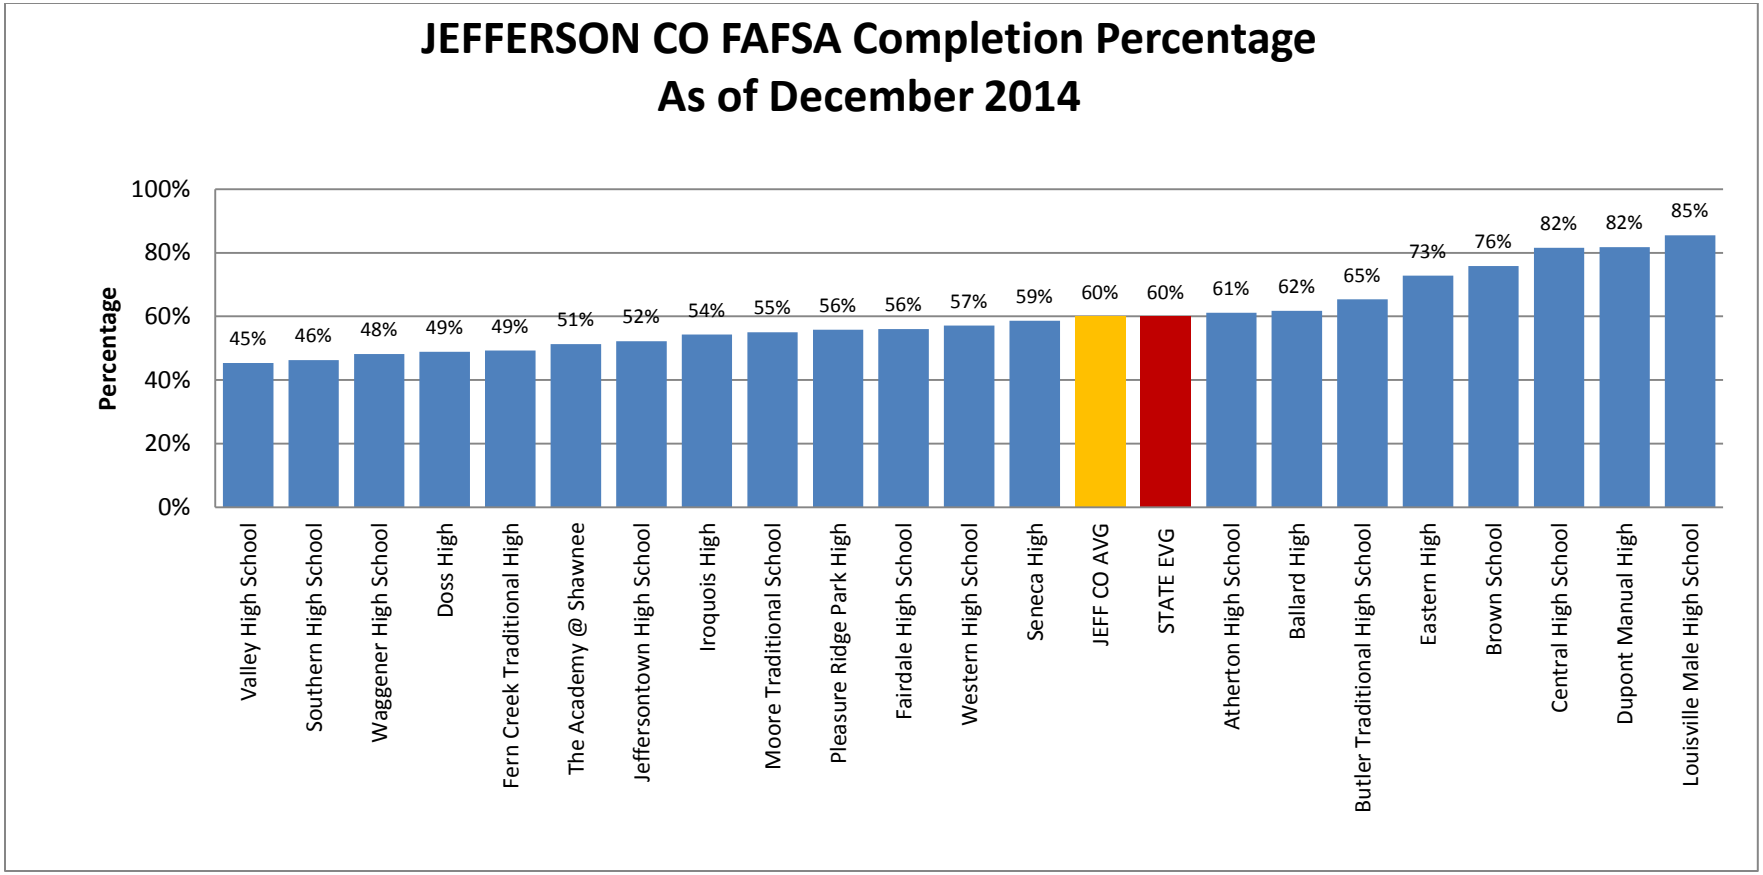
January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.

FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



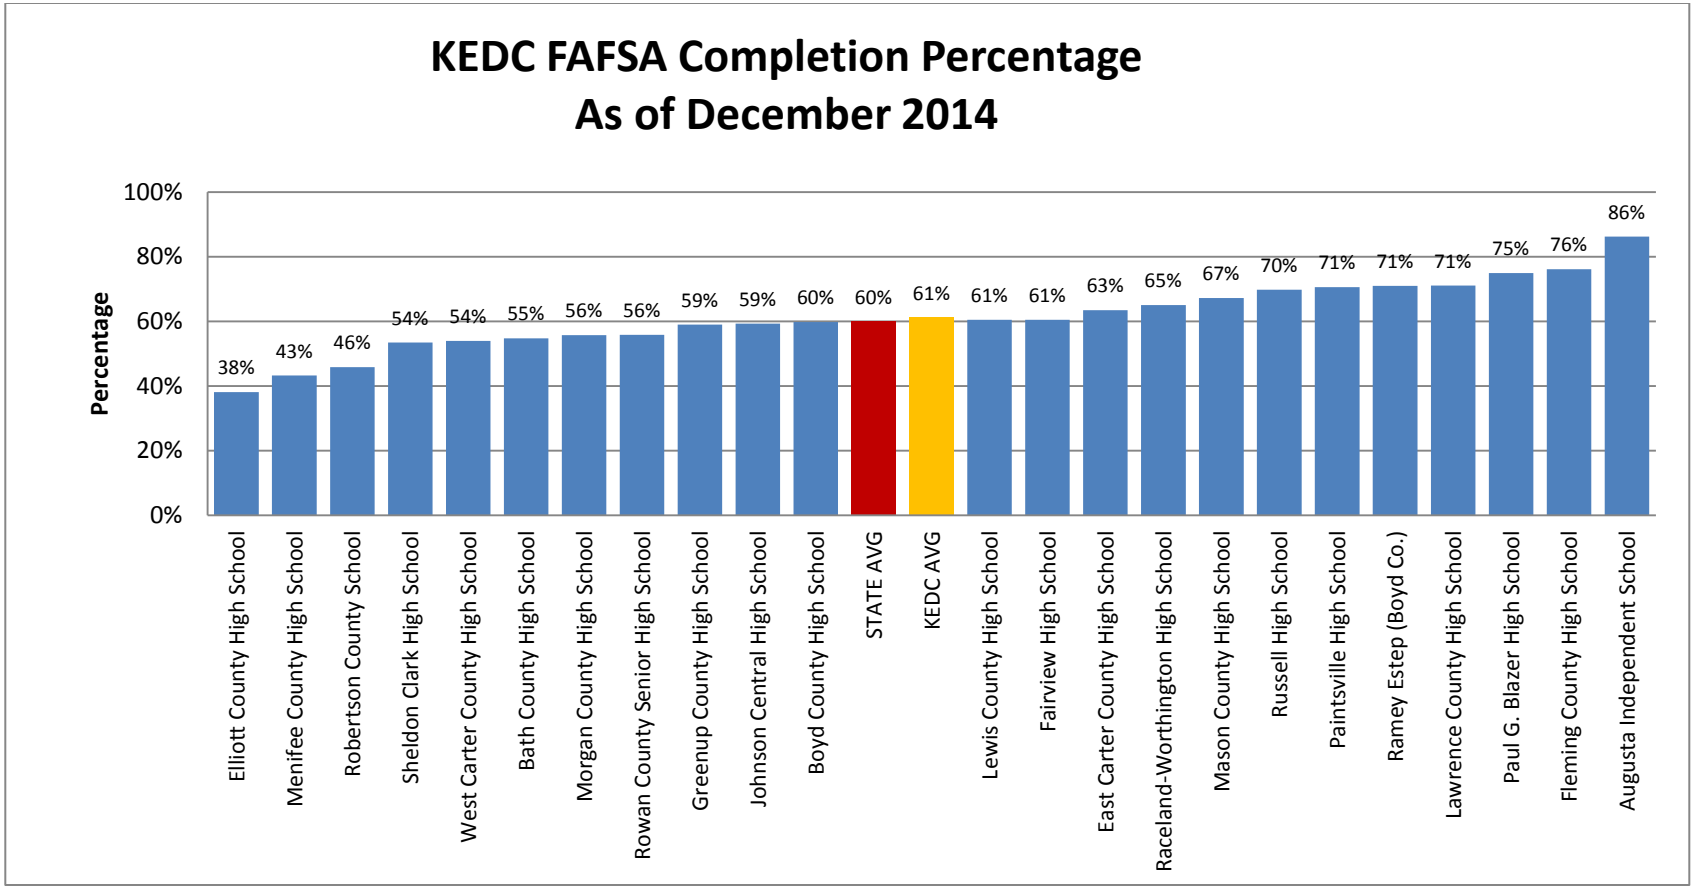
January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.

FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



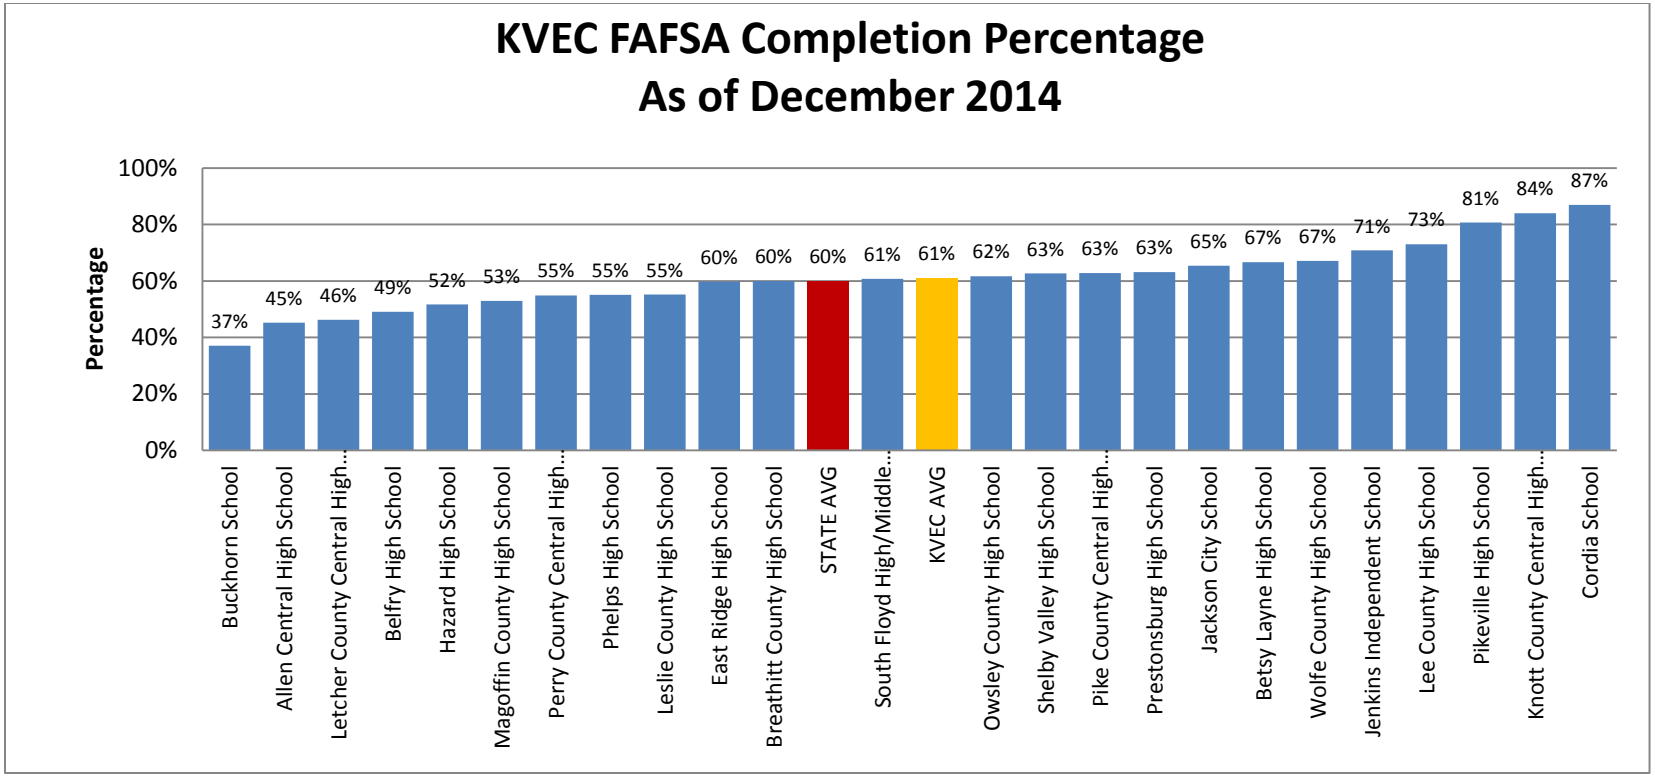
January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.

FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



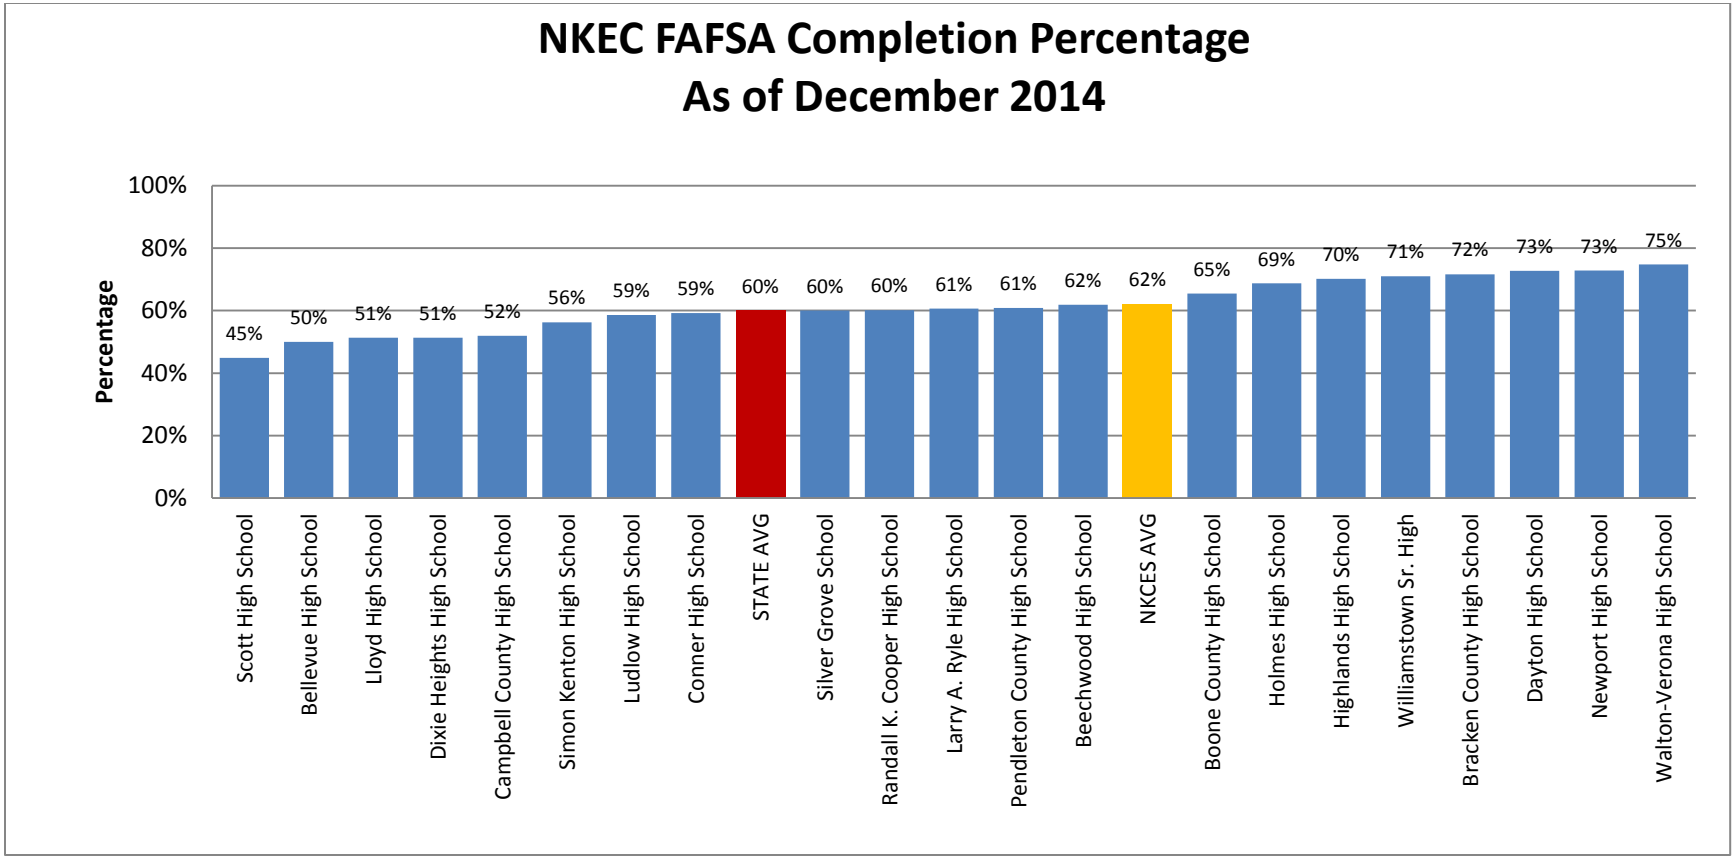
January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.

FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



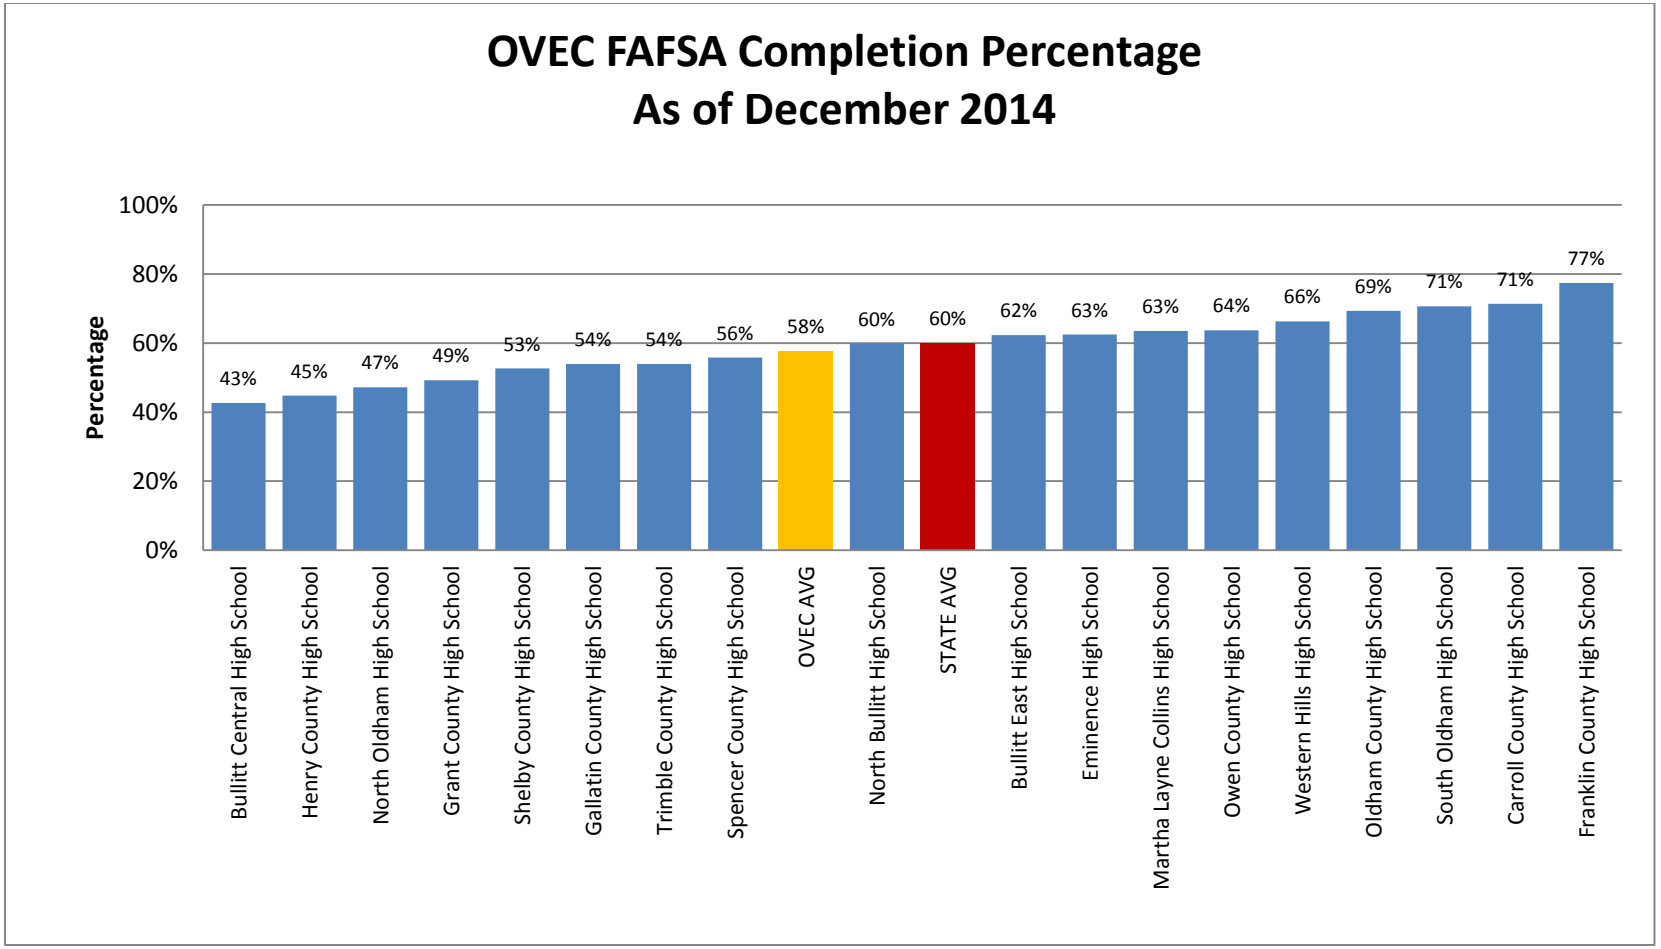
January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.

FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



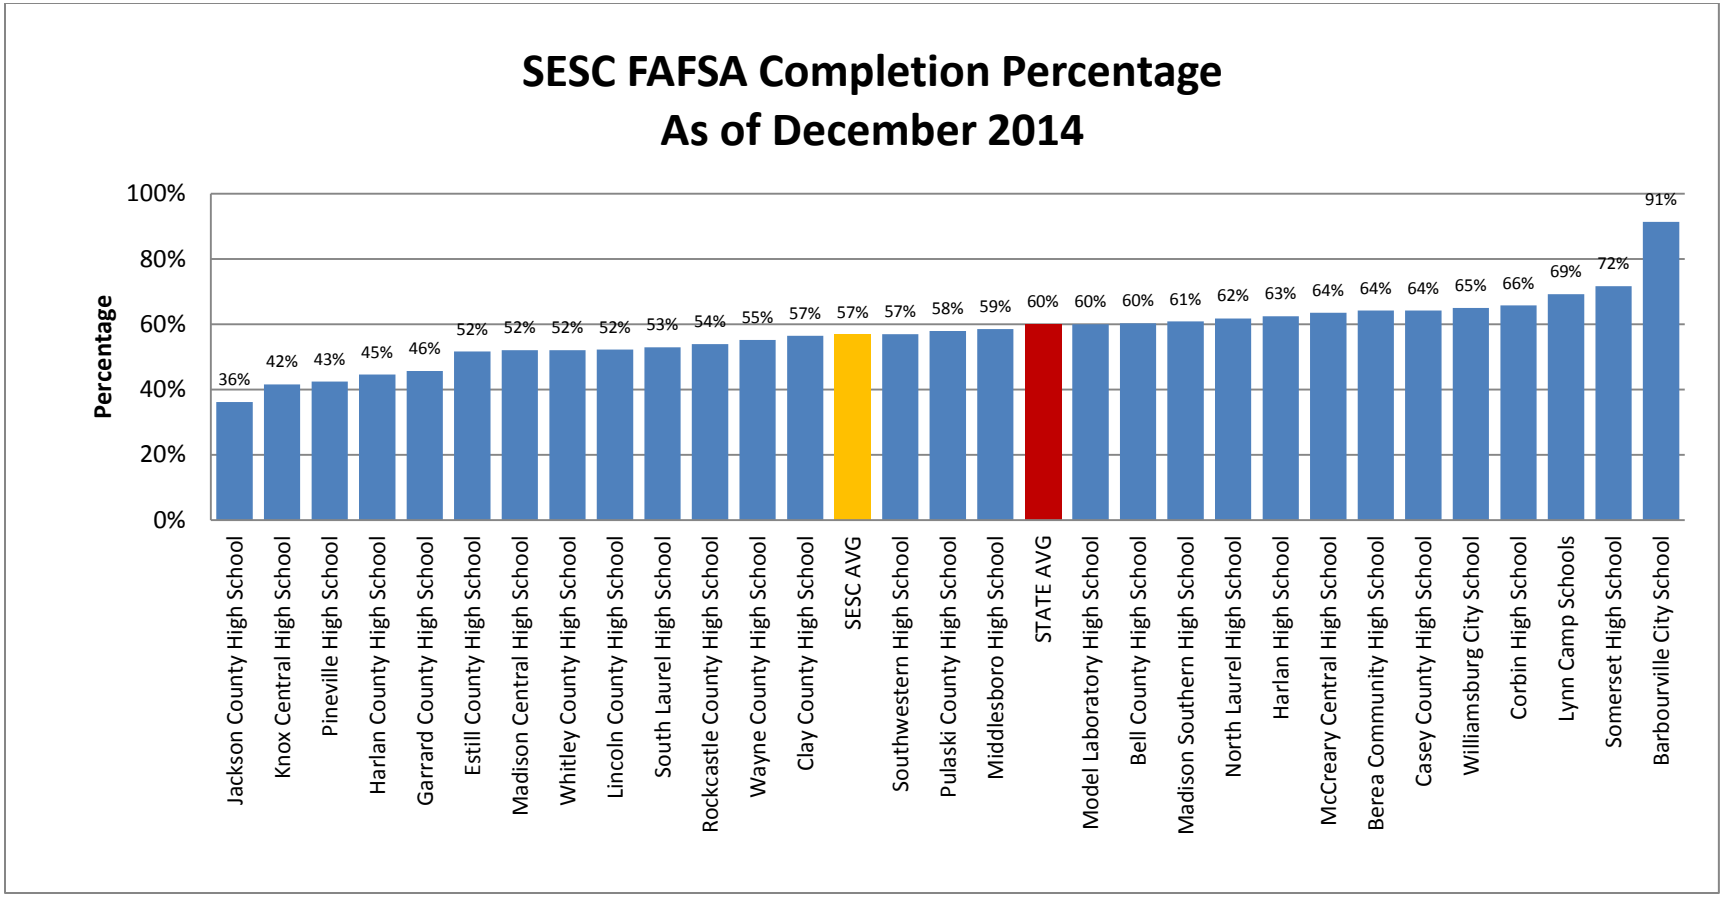
January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.

FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



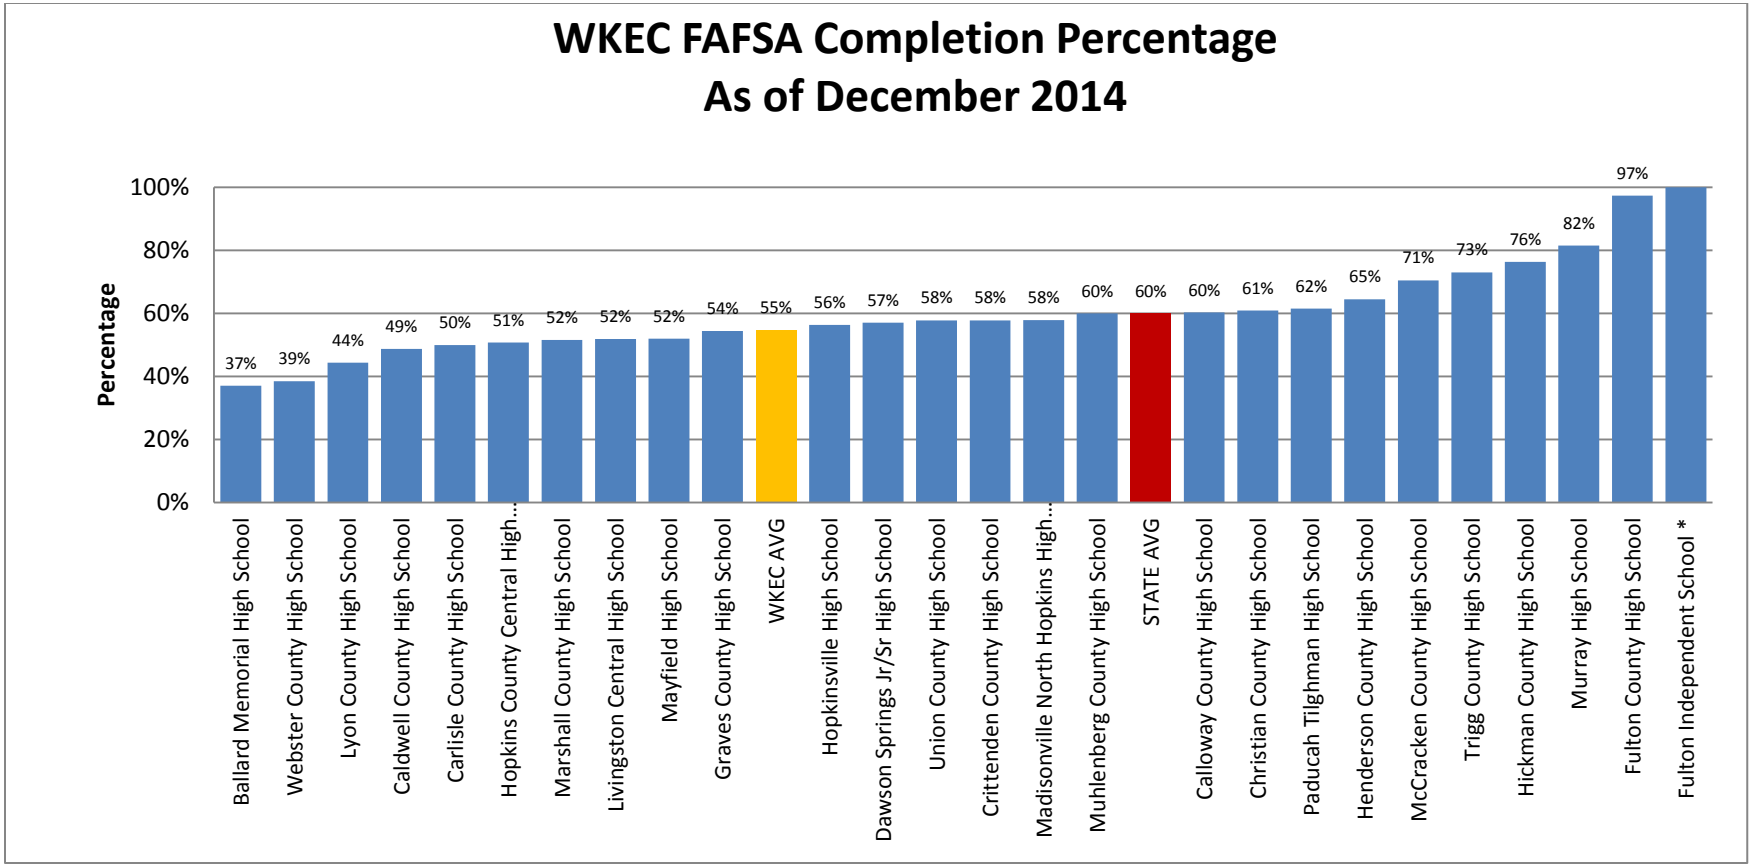
January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.

FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.

FAFSA Completion by High School for the Class of 2014



January 15, 2015 Prepared by the Commissioner's Delivery Unit B. Darlene Spurlock
Data Source: 2013-14 School Report Card Enrollment Data and 2014 FAFSA Completion Data from the US Department of Education FAFSA website.
https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-high-school
On the graphs, blue lines represent each A1 high school; yellow lines represent the educational cooperative average and red lines represent the state average. To calculate completion rate, the 2013-14 enrollment data for the Class of 2014 cohort was divided by the 2014 number of FAFSA's completed as of December 5, 2014. This data includes only students who are less than 19 years old, expected to earn a high school diploma and expected to enter a college or career school as a freshman. In two schools, the FAFSA completion amount was greater than the enrollment. Schools are indicated with an asterisk. After cross checking for accuracy, no explanation was found for this irregularity in reporting. FAFSA Completion Data Details can be found here: https://studentaid.ed.gov/about/data-center/student/application-volume/fafsa-completion-data. The new FAFSA window began on January 1, 2015. Class of 2015 completion data reporting will be updated monthly on the KDE website until May 2015.