

Resources and Tools

A Publication of the Office of Special Education and Early Learning

Resources and Tools for Remotely Teaching Students with Significant Cognitive Disabilities

Overview:

The Office of Special Education and Early Learning (OSEEL) has included a list of resources and tools that may be helpful for teachers instructing and providing services to students with significant cognitive disabilities on Non-Traditional Instruction school days.

The Northern Kentucky Cooperative for Educational Services - Collection of go-to resources that may be useful for educators as we work to deliver instruction to our students during Non-Traditional Instruction (NTI).

Educational Media Featuring High-Quality Captioning and Description – Resource to assist in educating students with sensory disabilities, along with their parents and teachers. Educational content is carefully customized to serve the needs of K-12 students, as well as adult students studying to meet the needs of blind and deaf students.

Boardmaker Activities to Go: Free downloadable activities that can be tied to speech and core content in elementary school.

Math-Aids -Resource that allows you to make an unlimited number of printable math worksheets which can be customized to each student and grade level.

Council for Exceptional Children: Resources for Teaching Remotely: A collection of suggested resources you can use as you determine the best means to provide services to your students and their families.

Boone County School District – NTI resources for teachers and parents

Bookshare: Online digital library with assistive technology support

ReadWorks: Reading comprehension support and instruction for English Learners (EL), special education students, and struggling readers as well as remote learning resources and tools.

Kentucky Educational Cooperatives Special Education Services

U.S. Department of Education: Information and Resources for Schools and School Personnel

Contact Information

Tania Sharp, Exceptional Child Consultant

Phone: (502)564-4970 Ext 4124

Email: tania.sharp@education.ky.gov

*Kentucky Department of Education
Office of Special Education and Early Learning
March 11, 2020*