BOARD OF EDUCATION DISCUSSES NEW ACCOUNTABILITY SYSTEM

(FRANKFORT, Ky.) – At its meeting in Frankfort today, the Kentucky Board of Education (KBE) discussed the development of a new accountability system for public schools under the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA).

“Our goal is to develop a system that is fair, reliable, easier to understand and more meaningful for kids,” Commissioner of Education Stephen Pruitt said. “If we don’t come out with an accountability system focused on students, then we’ve failed. It can’t be about what’s easiest for adults. The system needs to promote what’s best for students.”

The Kentucky Department of Education currently is holding Town Hall meetings across the state to gather public input on what educators, parents and other shareholders would like to see in the system. Shareholders also may submit thoughts through a special e-mail, KyEdListens@education.ky.gov.

“This isn’t an attempt to throw the baby out with the bath water, but to develop a system that is truly reflective of Kentucky values,” Pruitt said.

The commissioner said that soon he would name a steering committee, which represents all shareholder groups including legislators, to work with the public feedback and ESSA requirements to develop Kentucky’s new accountability system. Pruitt said he also will name a committee that will anticipate and try to head off any unintended consequences from the proposed system. The ESSA requires the system to be in place by the 2017-18 school year.

At its meeting, the board also heard an update on AdvanceKentucky. The program expands access to and participation and success in Advanced Placement (AP) courses, particularly among student populations traditionally underrepresented in these courses. Since AdvanceKentucky began in 2008, the number of students taking AP courses and earning qualifying scores has more than doubled. Data show that students who participate in AdvanceKentucky are significantly more likely than their counterparts to be prepared for and go to college, earn higher GPAs, and graduate in four years. In addition, more AdvanceKentucky minority and low income students go to college and significantly fewer enroll in one or more remedial courses.

high schools that will participate in the program:

- Boyd Co.
- Campbellsville Independent
- Central (Jefferson Co.)
- Elizabethtown Independent
- Fleming Co.
- Mason Co.
- Nelson Co.
- Thomas Nelson (Nelson Co.)

AdvanceKentucky now reaches students in 109 high schools in 79 of the state's 173 districts. Lang estimates that by the time current schools are in the seventh year of the program, students will earn qualifying scores and college credits in math, science and English alone that equate to $10 million in tuition savings every year, based on the average tuition for regional universities.

The board also heard updates on Teach for America, the 2016-18 biennial budget and education legislation from the 2016 session of the General Assembly. Kentucky Department of Education staff provided a status update on state assistance in Fleming and Robertson Counties and Caverna Independent, as well as an update on state management in Breathitt and Menifee Counties. All districts were reported to be making progress.

At its meeting, the board named Boone Co., Corbin Ind. and Metcalfe Co. school districts as new Districts of Innovation and approved select waivers for each district. KRS 156.108 and 160.107 provide Kentucky public school districts the opportunity to apply to the Kentucky Board of Education (KBE) for an exemption from certain administrative regulations and statutory provisions, as well as seek waivers of local board policy, in an effort to improve the learning of students.
